Mr. Peple's Reply.

A week or more ago the following notice, taken from an article written by Mr. George C. Jenkins and appearing in the September issue of the Broadway Magnzine, appeared in the society column of The Times-Dispatch. The notice said of the very interesting produc-

"One of the very interesting productions in September is expected to be "The Prince Chap," which will be put on by W. N. Lawrence at the Madison Square Theatre. This play has been made into a novel by Mr. Edward H. Peple, and published by the Puthams. can state, on excellent authority while Mr. Peple wrote the book, the that, while Mr. Peple wrote the book, the play is by another hand, the owner of which keeps himself modestly in the background for the present. The dramatist turned his play over to Mr. Peple to be novelized, thus reversing the usual order of things which is to dramatize the novel. How the authorship of the play will be announced, if it is the success expected, I do not knew."

The extract from the Broadway was clipped out of this paper, and, being forwarded to Mr. Peple, elicited a reply

RIVALRY IN LOVE.

By WILLIAM WALSH.

The author of these verses is said to be William Walsh, born in England in 163 and died in 170. The blographical dictionaries do not even mention him. The poem which he has left to posterity is best known by its last two lines. The opening lines was a familiar ring about them. Sylvia was a favorlic name with the poets of the olden time. The first poet probable used it as meaning some imaginary woodland nymph. It was afterwards used as a woman's name. Few collections of poems omit "Rivalry in Love," but more give any facile encerning the poets life. If in less than 200 years after his death he facts, in his life are forgotten by the world, after another 200 years his poem may pass into the category of anonymous.

F all the torments, all the cares, With which our lives are curst; Of all the plagues a lover bears, Sure rivals are the worst!

By partners of each other kind, Afflictions easier grow: In love alone we hate to find Companions of our woe.

Sylvia, for all the pangs you see Are laboring in my breast; l beg not you would favor me, Would you but slight the rest. How great soe'r your rigors are, With them alone I'll cope: I can endure my own despair,

MAMMOTH EXCURSION FROM RICHMOND

Young Lady Gives a Masher What He De-

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.) WEST POINT, VA., September 1.-The last week of "the good old summer time" has been varied in its weather., Each day and night, excursionists have West Point, Wednesday, the largest excursion of the season, under the auspices of the Sacred Heart Church of Richmond, came in two sections, twenty coaches in all. A good many rowdy, disorderly people contrived to come on this excursion. Many arrests were made and special policemen had to be employed. One would-be masher was successfully mashed. He walked up to several young ladies, who were sitting on the grass in the Terminal Hotel grounds, fulfelly enjoying their outing, and began conversation, winding up by addressing one of the young ladies, thus: "You are the prettiest, come take a walk with me." She said: "All right," and jumped with great alearity to her feet, striking straight from the shoulder. She gave him a lick with her fist in the face, which sent him recling and caused the blood to flow. He, not stopping to of Richmond, came in two sections face, which sent him reeling and caused the blood to flow. He, not stopping to discuss the situation, took to his heels without further parloy.

Another man met, out in the open, one of the young business men of West Point, who was walking peacefully along with his hands in his pocket, and knocked him down. The offender evidently was mistaken in his man, and an applogy followed. Many arrests were made during the day;

ANOTHER GREAT ROAD.

The Virginia and Southwestern to Spend Millions On Its Line. (Special to The Times-Dispatch) : BRISTOL, VA., September 1.—While the syndicate that has undertaken the extension of the South and Western Railroad from the Virginia coal fields to a point on the South Atlantic coast—a $20,000,000 project—is very busy with the construction work in the North Carolina mountains, and also has several forces of men at work in Southwest Virginia, it is now pretty certain that 'this is not the only project of the kind by which it is proposed to carry Virginia. which it is proposed to carry Virginia coal to the coast by a direct route, Henry K. McHarg, who owns the Virginia and Southwestern Railroad, has determined to build a road from Clinchport to the Toma Creek mines, in Wise county, Va., on practically the same route selected by the South and Western people. Mr. Mc-Harg is now having his proposed route surveyed, and is, it is said, accumula-ting material for the construction work. In this connection there is a rumor that Mr. McHarg, the leading spirit of the on is backing the other, have been in con-ference with a view to joining capital and constructing only one road instead

In the event of a compromise between In the event of a compromise between trees two opposing factions in the effort to gain an outlet for the Southwest Virginia coal deposits, the Virginia and Southwestern Railway will form a link of the new coal carrying road, which will place Bristol on the line of the new road. In the event of failure to agree, there may be two roads, one via Bristol and the other taking a direct course brough the other taking a direct course through East Tennessee, twenty inlies west of Bristol.

There has been much speculation as to why the Ryan syndicate has taken op-tions on or bought outright thousands of dollars worth of real estate in the Kingsport Valley. It is said to be the purpose to make a city at Kingsport, on the Holston River, and erect the carshops of the Rivet and Western Company

The result of the reported conferences between Mr. McHarg and Mr. Ryan is awalted with great interest; since thon their decision depends the route for a railroad that is to cost many millions of dollars.
